Welcome to this new edition of the EURHOPE Project Newsletter

26 June, Castellammare di Stabia: A Community Creating Opportunities

On 26 June, the final dissemination event of the EURHOPE project took place at the Amaranta Family-Style Educational Community in Castellammare di Stabia. The event provided an important opportunity for the young people involved in the project, educators, volunteers, and local community stakeholders to come together.

Demonstrating the strength of the collaborative network built throughout the project, the event was attended by a delegation of volunteers from the L'Arca della Gioia Association, together with a group of volunteer pizza makers, whose participation represented a meaningful example of civic engagement and support for the educational community.

Sharing the Journey to Celebrate the Results

The first part of the event was dedicated to presenting the activities carried out during the project. Through a review of the main objectives achieved, participants had the opportunity to retrace the most significant stages of the journey and appreciate the value of the experiences gained by the young people involved.

A particularly appreciated moment was the screening of the project's final video, featuring images, testimonials, and highlights from the activities carried out over the previous months. The video effectively showcased the journey undertaken, highlighting the participants' commitment, active involvement, and the skills they developed throughout the experience.

The Power of Feeling Like a Protagonist

One of the most meaningful moments of the day was the contribution of one of the young people from the educational community, who shared a story by reading it aloud to the audience. Although simple, this gesture carried great significance, giving participants the opportunity to hear directly from one of the project's young protagonists and to appreciate the personal growth achieved throughout the journey.

Sharing and Belonging: The Value of Community

The event concluded with a social gathering organised and hosted by the volunteers. By preparing and sharing food together, young people and adults had the opportunity to spend time together in an atmosphere of warmth, inclusion, and mutual participation.

This final experience reaffirmed that building strong local networks and fostering collaboration among institutions, associations, and citizens are essential to promoting the well-being of children and young people, while supporting their active participation in community life.
